

Yes, this is a story of nuclear waste, plutonium and reprocessing. The photo above shows the arrival of casks containing spent nuclear fuel at the Sellafield reprocessing complex, owned by British Nuclear Fuels Ltd. The other major reprocessing company is the French state-owned Cogema. Their clients are, among others, Germany, Japan, Switzerland, Belgium and the Netherlands.

From the table of contents you can reach every page.

These pages have been written around 1997/98 and have since then not been updated, neither will they be maintained or updated anymore. Thank you for your interest.

This content can be considered Public Domain